NUERY	Angthria	r_apernationoest
-67	Telenhone Traffic of the Soviet Occuration Forces	CONTRACTOR OF THE
NAME OF THE PERSON NAME OF THE P	16 STRICTO 1721	•
~	TO SERVICE SER	A SALES OF THE SAL
	many to the equipment of the control	25
	Backer Louis (AS 190)	AMBONI-PA
	DATE PREPARED 17 June 1992	POST PROGRAMAN
•
	ICES and the contraction is a section of the contraction of the contra
GES	ENCLOSURES (NO. & TYPE)	R* Constitution
EMARKS	Description of the control of the co	AT 47,4000000000
	WELLOW TO A STREET THE	ny per andra 1 13
MIKANI SA MAMA
#	The second secon	MANAGE SELECTION
(100,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000	CONTRACTOR OF THE PROPERTY AND ANY PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF 25
		-
	Prior to April 1952, in Venna and Baden (0 h9/X 37)
1.	Prior to April 1952, in Wenna and Baden (0 19/X 37)	25
	that the Russians were using both the Austrian telephone system and a telephone network of their own.
	Vienna, Loedling (0 49/x 37), Liesing (0 49/x 38) and other places. One line	ers
	Vienna, Roedling (O 19/K 37), Liesing (O 19/K 38) and other places. One line led from Eaden to Lwow via Hungary, and others led to Soviet division headquart in Austria and Hungary which belonged to the Contral Group of Forces. Check points were established for all telephone lines. The check point for the Bader Vienna line was in Wiener Neudorf (P 19/K 37). From these points, two soldiers would daily check on the status of the lines and repair any damage.	Į.
3.	led from Eaden to Lwow via Hungary, and others led to Soviet division headquart in Austria and Hungary which belonged to the Contral Group of Forces. Check points were established for all telephone lines. The check point for the Bader Vienna line was in Viener Neudorf (P 19/1 37). From these points, two soldiers would daily check on the status of the lines and repair any damage. All the telephone switchboards in Austria were occupied by personnel of the	Į.
3.	led from Eaden to Lwow via Hungary, and others led to Soviet division headquart in Austria and Hungary which belonged to the Contral Group of Forces. Check points were established for all telephone lines. The check point for the Bader Vienna line was in Viener Neudorf (P 19/1 37). From these points, two soldiers would daily check on the status of the lines and repair any damage.	Lacov
3.	led from Eaden to Lwow via Hungary, and others led to Soviet division headquart in Austria and Hungary which belonged to the Contral Group of Forces. Check points were established for all telephone lines. The check point for the Bader Vienna line was in Viener Neudorf (P 19/1 37). From these points, two soldiers would daily check on the status of the lines and repair any damage. All the telephone switchboards in Austria were occupied by personnel of the Podvishny Uzel Svyazy, (Robile Telephone Dase) under the command of Lieutenant	Lactor
	led from Eaden to Lwow via Hungary, and others led to Soviet division headquart in Austria and Hungary which belonged to the Control Group of Forces. Check points were established for all telephone lines. The check point for the Eader Vienna line was in Viener Neudorf (P 19/1 37). From these points, two soldiers would daily check on the status of the lines and repair any demage. All the telephone switchboards in Austria were occupied by personnel of the Podvishny Uzel Svyazy, (Robile Telephone Dase) under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Hyushin (fnu). The unit had the strength of a regiment. The Austrian public telephone system was used for unclassified communications,	Leave
	led from Eaden to Lwow via Hungary, and others led to Soviet division headquart in Austria and Hungary which belonged to the Contral Group of Forces. Check points were established for all telephone lines. The check point for the Bader Vienna line was in Miener Neudorf (P 19/1 37). From these points, two soldiers would daily check on the status of the lines and repair any demage. All the telephone switchboards in Austria were occupied by personnel of the Podvishny Uzel Svyazy, (Robile Telephone Base) under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Hyusbin (fnu). The unit had the strength of a regiment. The Austrian public telephone system was used for unclassified communications, particularly with Austrian authorities. Felephone extensions served by German	Leave led from Eaden to Lwow via Hungary, and others led to Soviet division headquart in Austria and Hungary which belonged to the Control Group of Forces. Check points were established for all telephone lines. The check point for the Bader Vienna line was in Tiener Neudorf (P hg/N 37). From these points, two soldiers would daily check on the status of the lines and repair any demage. All the telephone switchboards in Austria were occupied by personnel of the Podvishny Uzel Svyazy, (Robile Telephone Base) under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Hyusbin (fnu). The unit had the strengs of a regiment The Austrian public telephone system was used for unclassified communications, particularly with Austrian authorities. Felephone extensions served by German speaking interpreters included; Soviet Army Officers' Club, Vienna; U h2-h-66;
	led from Eaden to Lwow via Hungary, and others led to Soviet division headquart in Austria and Hungary which belonged to the Contral Group of Forces. Check points were established for all telephone lines. The check point for the Bader Vienna line was in Tiener Neudorf (P 19/1 37). From these points, two soldiers would daily check on the status of the lines and repair any damage. All the telephone switchboards in Austria were occupied by personnel of the Podvishny Uzel Svyazy, (Robile Telephone Base) under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Hyushin (fnu), The unit had the strength of a regiment. The Austrian public telephone system was used for unclassified communications, particularly with Austrian authorities. Felephone extensions served by German speaking interpreters included: Soviet Army Officers' Club, Vienna; U h2-h-06, Lieutenant Ponshin (fnu); R 29-6-8h, Lieutenant Colonel Ermonin (fnu); R 27-h-1 Gds Hajor Hetrofanov (fnu); R 20-h-92, Senior Lieutenant Lukhov; R 20-3-76,] 2:
	led from Eaden to Lwow via Hungary, and others led to Soviet division headquart in Austria and Hungary which belonged to the Contral Group of Forces. Check points were established for all telephone lines. The check point for the Bader Vienna line was in Tiener Neudorf (P 19/1 37). From these points, two soldiers would daily check on the status of the lines and repair any damage. All the telephone switchboards in Austria were occupied by personnel of the Podvishny Uzel Svyazy, (Robile Telephone Base) under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Hyushin (fnu), The unit had the strength of a regiment. The Austrian public telephone system was used for unclassified communications, particularly with Austrian authorities. Felephone extensions served by German speaking interpreters included: Soviet Army Officers' Club, Vienna; U 12-1-06, Lieutenant Ponshin (fnu); R 29-6-81, Lieutenant Colonel Ermonin (fnu); R 27-1-66, Lieutenant Lukhev; R 20-3-76, Captain Verbitski (fnu); R 29-0-71, Lieutenant Colonel Nonshin (fnu); R 25-4-06] 2t
	led from Eaden to Lwow via Hungary, and others led to Soviet division headquart in Austria and Hungary which belonged to the Contral Group of Forces. Check points were established for all telephone lines. The check point for the Bader Vienna line was in Tiener Neudorf (P 19/1 37). From these points, two soldiers would daily check on the status of the lines and repair any damage. All the telephone switchboards in Austria were occupied by personnel of the Podvishny Uzel Svyazy, (Robile Telephone Base) under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Hyushin (fnu), The unit had the strength of a regiment The Austrian public telephone system was used for unclassified communications, particularly with Austrian authorities. Felephone extensions served by German speaking interpreters included: Soviet Army Officers' Club, Vienna; U 12-1-06, Lieutenant Ponshin (fnu); R 29-6-81, Lieutenant Colonel Ermonin (fnu); R 27-1-1 Gds Major Hetrofanov (fnu); R 29-0-71, Lieutenant Colonel Nonshin (fnu); R 25-4-06 Lajor Zogonov; R 21-1-85, Major Shevnerov (fnu). Telephone extensions] 2t
	led from Eaden to Lwow via Hungary, and others led to Soviet division headquart in Austria and Hungary which belonged to the Control Group of Forces. Check points were established for all telephone lines. The check point for the Bader Vienna line was in Viener Neudorf (P 19/1 37). From these points, two soldiers would daily check on the status of the lines and repair any damage. All the telephone switchboards in Austria were occupied by personnel of the Podvishny Uzel Svyazy, (Robile Telephone Base) under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Hyushin (fnu). The unit had the strength of a regiment The Austrian public telephone system was used for unclassified communications, particularly with Austrian authorities. Felephone extensions served by German speaking interpreters included: Soviet Army Officers' Club, Vienna; U 12-1-06; Lieutenant Ponshin (fnu); R 29-6-81, Lieutenant Colonel Ermonin (fnu); R 27-1-66; Lieutenant Ponshin (fnu); R 29-6-81, Lieutenant Colonel Ermonin (fnu); R 27-1-66; Captain Verbitski (fnu); R 29-0-71; Lieutenant Colonel Nonshin (fnu); R 25-1-06; Liajor Zogonov; R 21-1-85, Major Shevnerov (fnu). Telephone extensions identified in Baden and Noedling at the Mg Central Group of Forces included: 2-31, Lieutenant General Sviridov (fnu), Soviet military commander in Austria;] 2t
	led from Eaden to Lwow via Hungary, and others led to Soviet division headquart in Austria and Hungary which belonged to the Control Group of Forces. Check points were established for all telephone lines. The check point for the Bader Vienna line was in Viener Neudorf (P hg/x 37). From these points, two soldiers would daily check on the status of the lines and repair any demage. All the telephone switchboards in Austria were occupied by personnel of the Podvishny Uzel Svyazy, (Robile Telephone Base) under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Hyushin (fnu). The unit had the strength of a regiment Forman speaking interpreters included: Soviet Army Officers Club, Vienna; U h2-h-06, Lieutenant Ponshin (fnu); R 29-6-8h, Lieutenant Colonel Ermonin (fnu); R 27-h-16 Gds Kajor Retrofanov (fnu); R 20-h-92, Senior Lieutenant Lukhov; R 20-3-76, Captain Verbitski (fnu); R 29-0-7h, Lieutenant Colonel Nonshin (fnu); R 25-h-06 Kajor Zogonov; R 21-h-85, Major Shevnerov (fnu). Telephone extensions identified in Baden and Moedling at the Mg Central Group of Forces included: 2-3h, Lieutenant General Sviridov (fnu), Soviet military commander in Austria; 2-32, Major General Pomortsev, Chief of the Political Administration; 3-h2,	255,
	led from Eaden to Lwow via Hungary, and others led to Soviet Civision headquart in Austria and Hungary which belonged to the Control Group of Forces. Check points were established for all telephone lines. The check point for the Bader Vienna line was in Tiener Neudorf (P hg/N 37). From these points, two soldiers would daily check on the status of the lines and repair any damage. All the telephone switchboards in Austria were occupied by personnel of the Podvishny Uzel Svyazy, (Robile Telephone Base) under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Hyushin (fnu). The unit had the strength of a regiment Colonel Hyushin (fnu). The unit had the strength of a regiment particularly with Austrian authorities. Felephone extensions served by German speaking interpreters included: Soviet Army Officers' Club, Vienna; U h2-h-66, Lieutenant Ponshin (fnu); R 29-6-8h, Lieutenant Colonel Ermonin (fnu); R 27-h-66s, Major Metrofanov (fnu); R 20-h-92, Senior Lieutenant Lukhov; R 20-3-76, Captain Verbitski (fnu); R 29-0-7h, Lieutenant Colonel Nonshin (fnu); R 25-h-66 Eajor Zogonov; R 21-h-85, Major Shevnerov (fnu). Telephone extensions identified in Baden and Moedling at the Mg Central Group of Forces included: 2-3h, Lieutenant General Sviridov (fnu), Soviet military commander in Austria; 2-32, Major General Ponortsev, Chief of the Political Administration; 3-h2, General Khoritonov, Deputy Chief of the Political Administration; 2-07, Lieutenant Colonel Romans (2-07, Lieutenant Romans (2-07, Lieutena	255,
	led from Eaden to Lwow via Hungary, and others led to Soviet Civision headquart in Austria and Hungary which belonged to the Contral Group of Forces. Check points were established for all telephone lines. The check point for the Bader Vienna line was in Tiener Neudorf (P 19/1 37). From these points, two soldiers would daily check on the status of the lines and repair any damage. All the telephone switchboards in Austria were occupied by personnel of the Podvishny Uzel Svyazy, (Robile Telephone Base) under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Ilyushin (fnu). The unit had the strength of a regiment particularly with Austrian authorities. Felephone extensions served by German speaking interpreters included: Soviet Army Officers' Glub, Vienna; U 12-1-66, Lieutenant Ponshin (fnu); R 29-6-81, Lieutenant Colonel Ermonin (fnu); R 27-1-66 (Saljor Hetrofanov (fnu); R 20-1-92, Senior Lieutenant Lukhev; R 20-3-76, Captain Verbitski (fnu); R 29-0-71, Lieutenant Golonel Nonshin (fnu); R 25-1-06 (Lajor Zogonov; R 21-1-85, Major Shevnerov (fnu). Telephone extensions identified in Baden and Moedling at the Mg Central Group of Forces included: 2-31, Lieutenant General Sviridov (fnu), Soviet military commander in Austria; 2-32, Major General Sviridov (fnu), Soviet military commander in Austria; 2-32, Major General Fonortsev, Chief of the Political Administration; 2-07, Lieuten Colonel (Eng.) Popov (fnu); 2-85, Ceneral Sovilov (fnu); 2-7h, General Kulikov (fnu); h-3h, Ceneral Pomortsev (fnu); h-61, Ceneral Krazovski (fnu). Telephone	25 35,
	led from Eaden to Lwow via Hungary, and others led to Soviet Civision headquart in Austria and Hungary which belonged to the Contral Group of Forces. Check points were established for all telephone lines. The check point for the Bader Vienna line was in Viener Neudorf (P hg/m 37). From these points, two soldiers would daily check on the status of the lines and repair any damage. All the telephone switchboards in Austria were occupied by personnel of the Podvishny Uzel Svyazy, (Robile Telephone Base) under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Ilyushin (fnu). The unit had the strengly of a regiment particularly with Austrian authorities. Telephone extensions served by German speaking interpreters included: Soviet Army Officers' Club, Vienna; U h2-h-66, Lieutenant Ponshin (fnu); R 29-6-6h, Lieutenant Colonel Ermonin (fnu); R 27-h-66 (Sajor Hetrofanov (fnu); R 20-h-92, Senior Lieutenant Lukhev; R 20-3-76, Captain Verbitski (fnu); R 29-0-7h, Lieutenant Colonel Nonshin (fnu); R 25-h-66 (Lajor Zogonov; R 21-h-85, Major Shevnerov (fnu). Telephone extensions identified in Baden and Noedling at the Mg Central Group of Forces included: 2-3h, Lieutenant General Sviridov (fnu), Boviet military commander in Austria; 2-32, Major General Pomortsev, Chief of the Political Administration; 3-h2, General Khoritonov, Deputy Chief of the Political Administration; 3-h2, General Khoritonov, Deputy Chief of the Political Administration; 3-h2, General Khoritonov, Deputy Chief of the Political Administration; Telephone extensions assigned to the Administration of the Rear Services of the Central	25 35,
	led from Eaden to Lwow via Hungary, and others led to Soviet Civision headquart in Austria and Hungary which belonged to the Contral Group of Forces. Check points were established for all telephone lines. The check point for the Bader Vienna line was in Tiener Neudorf (P 19/1 37). From these points, two soldiers would daily check on the status of the lines and repair any damage. All the telephone switchboards in Austria were occupied by personnel of the Podvishny Uzel Svyazy, (Robile Telephone Base) under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Ilyushin (fnu). The unit had the strength of a regiment particularly with Austrian authorities. Felephone extensions served by German speaking interpreters included: Soviet Army Officers' Glub, Vienna; U 12-1-66, Lieutenant Ponshin (fnu); R 29-6-81, Lieutenant Colonel Ermonin (fnu); R 27-1-66 (Saljor Hetrofanov (fnu); R 20-1-92, Senior Lieutenant Lukhev; R 20-3-76, Captain Verbitski (fnu); R 29-0-71, Lieutenant Golonel Nonshin (fnu); R 25-1-06 (Lajor Zogonov; R 21-1-85, Major Shevnerov (fnu). Telephone extensions identified in Baden and Moedling at the Mg Central Group of Forces included: 2-31, Lieutenant General Sviridov (fnu), Soviet military commander in Austria; 2-32, Major General Sviridov (fnu), Soviet military commander in Austria; 2-32, Major General Fonortsev, Chief of the Political Administration; 2-07, Lieuten Colonel (Eng.) Popov (fnu); 2-85, Ceneral Sovilov (fnu); 2-7h, General Kulikov (fnu); h-3h, Ceneral Pomortsev (fnu); h-61, Ceneral Krazovski (fnu). Telephone	285,
	led from Eaden to Lwow via Hungary, and others led to Soviet division headquart in Austria and Hungary which belonged to the Control Group of Forces. Check points were established for all telephone lines. The check point for the Bader Vienna line was in Tiener Newdorf (P 19/E 37). From these points, two soldiers would daily check on the status of the lines and repair any demage. All the telephone switchboards in Austria were occupied by personnel of the Podvishny Uzel Svyazy, (Robile Telephone Base) under the command of Lieutenaut Colonel Hyushin (fnu). The unit had the strength of a regiment The Austrian public telephone system was used for unclassified communications, particularly with Austrian authorities. Felephone extensions served by German speaking interpreters included: Soviet Army Officers' Club, Vienna; U 12-1-66, Lieutenaut Ponshin (fnu); R 29-6-61, Lieutenaut Colonel Emmonin (fnu); R 27-1-66, Captain Verbitski (fnu); R 29-6-71, Lieutenaut Colonel Emmonin (fnu); R 27-1-66, Captain Verbitski (fnu); R 29-0-71, Lieutenaut Colonel Monshin (fnu); R 25-1-66, Eajor Zogonov; R 21-1-85, Major Shevnerov (fnu). Telephone extensions identified in Baden and Moedling at the Mg Central Group of Forces included: 2-31, Lieutenaut General Fomortsev, Chief of the Political Administration; 2-07, Lieuten Colonel (Eng.) Popov (fnu); 2-85, General Sovilov (fnu); 2-71, General Kulikov (fnu); h-81, General Pomortsev (fnu); h-61, Ceneral Krazovski (fnu). Telephone extensions assigned to the Administration of the Rear Sorvices of the Central Group of Forces included: 3-71, General Emmyantsev (fnu); 3-51, General Emishki	285,
	led from Eaden to Lawa via Hungary, and others led to Soviet Civision headquart in Austria and Hungary which belonged to the Contral Group of Forces. Check points were established for all telephone lines. The check point for the Bader Vienna line was in Theore Newdorf (P 19/5 37). From these points, two soldiers would daily check on the status of the lines and repair any damage. All the telephone switchboards in Austria were occupied by personnel of the Podvishny Uzel Svyazy, (Pobile Telephone Bace) under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Hyushin (fnu), The unit had the strength of a regirent The Austrian public telephone system was used for unclassified communications, particularly with Austrian authorities. Feliphone extensions served by German speaking interpreters included: Sowiet Army Officers' Club, Vienna; U 42-4-66, Lieutenant Ponshin (fnu); R 29-6-64, Lieutenant Colonel Ermonin (fnu); R 27-4-66 Gds Kajor Netrofanov (fnu); R 29-6-74, Lieutenant Colonel Ermonin (fnu); R 27-4-66 Captain Verbitshi (fnu); R 29-0-74, Lieutenant Colonel Nonshin (fnu); R 25-4-66 Lajor Zogonov; R 21-4-85, Major Shevnerov (fnu). Telephone extensions identified in Baden and Moedling at the Mg Central Group of Forces included: 2-34, Lieutenant General Swiridov (fnu), Soviet military commanier in Austria; 2-32, Kajor General Fomortsev, Chief of the Political Administration; 3-42, Ceneral Fomortsev (fnu); 1-61, Ceneral Emministration; 2-07, Lieuten Colonel (Eng) Popov (fnu); 2-85, Ceneral Sovilov (fnu); 2-7h, General Kulikov (fnu); 1-81, Ceneral Pomortsev (fnu); 1-61, Ceneral Krazovski (fnu). Telephone extensions assigned to the Administration of the Rear Services of the Central Group of Forces included: 3-7h, Ceneral Emmyantsev (fnu); 3-51, Ceneral Fmishki (fnu); 2-9h, General Maslenikov (fnu); 1-27, General Kulishev (fnu); 3-35,	285,
	led from Eaden to Lawa via Hungary, and others led to Soviet Civision headquart in Austria and Hungary which belonged to the Contral Group of Forces. Check points were established for all telephone lines. The check point for the Bader Vienna line was in Theore Newdorf (P 19/5 37). From these points, two soldiers would daily check on the status of the lines and repair any damage. All the telephone switchboards in Austria were occupied by personnel of the Podvishny Uzel Svyazy, (Pobile Telephone Bace) under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Hyushin (fnu), The unit had the strength of a regirent The Austrian public telephone system was used for unclassified communications, particularly with Austrian authorities. Feliphone extensions served by German speaking interpreters included: Sowiet Army Officers' Club, Vienna; U 42-4-66, Lieutenant Ponshin (fnu); R 29-6-64, Lieutenant Colonel Ermonin (fnu); R 27-4-66 Gds Kajor Netrofanov (fnu); R 29-6-74, Lieutenant Colonel Ermonin (fnu); R 27-4-66 Captain Verbitshi (fnu); R 29-0-74, Lieutenant Colonel Nonshin (fnu); R 25-4-66 Lajor Zogonov; R 21-4-85, Major Shevnerov (fnu). Telephone extensions identified in Baden and Moedling at the Mg Central Group of Forces included: 2-34, Lieutenant General Swiridov (fnu), Soviet military commanier in Austria; 2-32, Kajor General Fomortsev, Chief of the Political Administration; 3-42, Ceneral Fomortsev (fnu); 1-61, Ceneral Emministration; 2-07, Lieuten Colonel (Eng) Popov (fnu); 2-85, Ceneral Sovilov (fnu); 2-7h, General Kulikov (fnu); 1-81, Ceneral Pomortsev (fnu); 1-61, Ceneral Krazovski (fnu). Telephone extensions assigned to the Administration of the Rear Services of the Central Group of Forces included: 3-7h, Ceneral Emmyantsev (fnu); 3-51, Ceneral Fmishki (fnu); 2-9h, General Maslenikov (fnu); 1-27, General Kulishev (fnu); 3-35,	25 35, 25X1 Comment. This telephone exchange is cossibly at 23 Trostcasse. 25X1 It is possibly assigned to an unidentified signal regiment of the Central Group of Forces. Comment. A Major General Fonortsev (fnu) was known to be the Chief of the Political Administration of the fast Siberian ID prior to September 1946. 25X1 Political Administration of the fast Siberian ID prior to September 1946. Lajor Sogonov (fnu) and Captain Verbitski (fnu) are stationed at the House of the Soviet Army in Vienna. General Krazovski (fnu) is the commander-in-chief of the Fifty-Minth Air Army.

Approved For Release 2006/08/08: CIA-RDP82-00457R012800340004-3 SECRET/CONTROL/US OFFICIALS OFLY/SECURITY INFORMATION

Approved For Release 2006/08/08: CIA-RDP82-00457R012800340004-3